Russia was the first foreign location of ARTIS selling Group. Since March 2022, the Russian market has been experiencing instability. ARTIS selling Group also notices that the market is developing faster than ever in all possible directions. There are unprecedented challenges but also unprecedented opportunities. Many clients of ARTIS selling Group, both Russian clients and foreign clients with market in Russia are changing their businesses and ways of working. Some companies are withdrawing from the market, while others are investing more than ever in the market.

The ARTIS selling Group has been observing the market with a lot of concern during the last months and has carried out various analyses and market potential checks. After a final report of the analysts, the management of ARTIS selling Group decided in October that the company will continue to exist in Russia and will continue to serve the Russian market. From 2023 onwards, the ARTIS selling Group will even provide additional resources for further market development in Russia and expand the range of services in Russia. In particular, ARTIS selling Group wants to become the first point of contact for companies from Europe that want to do business in Russia, and the first point of contact for Russian companies that want to work with foreign countries. Already today ARTIS selling Group is the third largest German-Russian company for business development consulting in Russia.

"The whole company history connects us with Russia, Russia is an important market with intercontinental significance, American, European and Asian companies are not to be omitted from Russia, for foreign companies in the last years and also particularly in the last months possibilities opened up, which one finds in such a way on the open market only rarely, we help our partners the potentials to use" says Paul Diehlmann of the ARTIS selling Group Holding.

"Russia is a market that is currently viewed by many with a critical eye, we see the market soberly, we are not politicians and do not interfere in politics, we work our field and our field is the market, this field is incredibly wide and profitable in Russia. That's why we decided in October 2022 that we want to stay in Russia and expand the market." Says the managing director of ASG Global (Nico Miller).
